crowded with fans as well as a great turnout of cars and drivers!

Did anybody stay home and watch the Coca-Cola 600? Does anybody care? I certainly do not!

As NASCAR has decided to abandon the fair traditions of racing, and as they continue to morph themselves over to a marketing institution — they drive more and more of their loyal fan base away.

And the real race fans are returning to their roots — grassroots racing.

It was a great night to be at Rome

The Swims family had put down fresh clay on the 1/2-mile oval during the off-season. The track looked good early in the night but wore in a little rough there at the end. Hopefully the track will come in smoother for the next event on Sunday night, June 19th.

And mark your calendars! The Lucas Oil Super Cars are scheduled to be at Rome on October 9th for The Rome Rumble. I am looking forward to that show!
