

HONDA INDY TORONTO: Streets of Toronto, Ontario, July 17

Story & photos by: Joe Proietti for MSA

Luck and a late yellow helped Will Power roll to his third victory of the season closing up the gap between him and team mate and points leader Simon Pagenaud.

Scott Dixon, the pole sitter lead 56 laps, until Josef Newgarden lost control going over a damaged curb and hit the turn 5 wall. Will Power had just pulled in the pits when the yellow came out. The pits were closed and Dixon and others had to circle the track twice before making their stops. Dixon went from first to 13th. Power was in the lead on lap 76 and led the final 10 laps to win for the third time this year.

It was perfect timing. "I can't tell you how many times it has gone the opposite way for me; I was stoked to see the yellow lights as I was going into the pits. It's not often you catch yellow like that.

Power had a fast car all day and ran in the top three all day but needed a little bit of luck to take the lead.
