250's Final Race

It was a tale of brother versus brother (or at least teammate versus teammate) and East versus West when Adam Cianciarulo got around Chase Sexton on Lap 3 and set his sights on Austin Forkner. Nine laps later, the West Coast rider Cianciarulo passed Forkner and became the first to do so during the 2019 season.

Cianciarulo held on to win by nearly five seconds over Dylan Ferrandis.

It was his third showdown win after winning the season finale at Las Vegas for the past two years. Cianciarulo is the first rider to win three showdowns.

"Those guys are riding so good," Cianciarulo told NBCSN after his victory. "I can't say enough good things about Chase (Sexton) and Austin both. Their pace was unreal. For me it was just about trying to learn their pace and learn where they were better than me. That's what I'm most proud of that main. I didn't feel good all day. Honestly, I was pretty good in practice, but just terrible in my heat. I just stayed patient. I told myself on the line, 'whatever you do, just do your very best the entire time'. And my best was good enough for a win."

Next race Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis, IN - catch it live on NBC Sports Gold starting at 1PM. Check out www.supercross.com!
